Correspondence regarding editorial matters should be addressed to Dr. Eric F. Johnson, Editor, Drug Metabolism and Disposition, at the above address.

Official version: The online version of Drug Metabolism and Disposition contains all of the information and material contained in the print version plus additional material that may not appear in print such as videos and large data sets. The online version may be more current than the print version. Where noted, the online version has been corrected in departure from the print version. The online version of Drug Metabolism and Disposition officially published by the American Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics is the definitive version and, to the extent any difference exists, will prevail over the print version.

Instructions to Authors: See <http://dmd.aspetjournals.org> for the Instructions to Authors and the ASPET Authorship Responsibility, Financial Disclosure, and Copyright Transfer form.

Correspondence concerning subscriptions: Nonmember individual and institutional subscriptions: ASPET Subscriptions Dept., Rm. Do you want to discover more?

Do you want a senior career in a scientific role without the distractions of management and administration? Pfizer, one of the most advanced pharmaceutical companies in the world, offers you a scientific path to follow, enabling you to reach new heights by focusing on and enjoying what you do best – the science of drug metabolism.

ADME Project Expert Sandwich, Kent

PDM is a multidisciplinary department whose work involves guiding successful design of potential new medicines and supporting projects from idea through to loss of exclusivity. We work closely with the Therapeutic Areas to help them deliver the best possible drug candidates to market by influencing compound design or screening sequence and predicting the most effective outcome of trials.

As an ADME Project Expert, you will focus on one specific therapeutic area – Pain, Anti-virals, Allergy & Respiratory or Genito-Urinary (experience in these therapeutic areas is not essential). Or you may specialise in Exploratory Research where you would focus on the earlier stages of discovery.

You'll work at the PDM/project interface, guiding and influencing your projects and by liaising with the people involved, you'll help them to deliver high quality drug candidates.

We're looking for enthusiasm for focusing on the science of drug metabolism rather than administration and people management. Your extensive experience in a discovery project support environment, credentials and communication skills will enable you to be decisive and take responsibility for decisions on multiple projects.

Closing date: 6th July 2007

Working for a healthier world™

Where can you focus on real science?

Imagine an organisation where your scientific skills count for everything. A place where you can focus on the science of drug metabolism and influence new discoveries and developments. With a well respected organisation in this field that influences global developments through academic and regulatory collaborations, and publications. At our European R&D headquarters in Sandwich, Kent, you can focus on real science in a range of projects.

In Vitro Technologies Scientist Pharmacokinetics, Dynamics and Metabolism, Sandwich, Kent

Working closely with our chemists, biologists and clinicians you'll join the team in our state-of-the-art labs to provide key data to support the discovery and development of innovative medicines. With your practical bioanalytical skills and knowledge of in vitro drug metabolism and enzyme kinetics, you'll generate, contextualise and interpret data to predict drug-drug interactions, in a flexible environment. As an innovative scientist, you'll enjoy the scope to develop and implement new techniques to improve our knowledge of enzyme kinetics and drug interactions.

You'll need a BSc or MSc in a relevant subject, together with experience of in vitro metabolic technologies and the ability to interpret data clearly and rationally. Just as important, you'll need the energy and enthusiasm to drive scientific innovations and influence drug discovery and development.
